The public and FC Library patrons are invited to the retirement party for Librarian Diana Junior this Saturday from 2 to 4 at the Library. After 33 years in that post she decided to take it easy with husband, Andy. The local facility is vastly different than the one she walked into in 1987 with all its computers and on-line access. Her bubbling personality will be sorely missed and we wish her the very best.

Sausage & Pepper hoagie, cheesesteak and mac & cheese hit the spot in the snow last Thursday at Cables Deli, Union Dale. The trees were shimmering and loaded with snow at the time but later in the day, the sun and wind returned the landscape to that dreary gray.

This year's Pennsylvania voting is unique as anyone can vote by mail-in ballot. You can get applications at www.votesPA.com/mailballot, or call 1-877-868-3772, or stop in the News Office. Besides name and address you need to identify yourself either with a PA driver's license number, a PennDOT ID card number or last four digits of your Social Security number. You will then get a ballot by mail and you mail it back.

Newspapers celebrate Sunshine Week this month so people know about the Sunshine Law which REQUIRES governmental bodies (Councils, School Boards, Townships, etc.) to do their business in public, and allow public access to their records. Some elected officials make decisions in private, or at executive sessions, and bring the decisions to be rubber-stamped in public. "We give them a chance to comment at our meetings," they say. Not enough! The law says they must discuss decisions in public. The public should not be kept in the dark and should know that some of these bodies are not just one big happy family, but do express pros and cons.

dedicated himself to serving his fellow man.

He then went on a sabbatical to Notre Dame University, South Bend, Indiana. After refreshing and renewing himself he started to work in 1984 in northwestern Mississippi at the parishes of Sacred Heart, in Walls, and Christ the King, in Southaven. He stayed there for 17 years doing pastoral work and missionary work as well as keeping up his role as a teacher. He retired from that mission in 2007 and enjoyed retirement in the St. Petersburg area of Florida. He still helped out doing pastoral work in parishes and nursing homes.

As a priest for almost 50 years, he kept in touch with his hometown and his family. His brother Robert, still resides in the family home. In 1995 he celebrated his Silver Jubilee in the priesthood at St. Joseph's Church, Forest City. He returned here almost every year for a few weeks and said Mass in his home parish. He was planning to return here in May 2020 to celebrate his 50th Jubilee in the priesthood.

At the time he was awarded the 2009 Forest City Area Distinguished Citizen award he summed up his life in his own words: "I've enjoyed my life, even though it has been with some struggles and I am grateful for having been born in Forest City and raised with my siblings with deep values."

Lackawanna River Named PA 2020 River of the Year

The Lackawanna River in Northeastern Pennsylvania has been voted the state's 2020 River of the Year. It failed to garner enough on-line votes in two previous years but was successful in the online voting conducted by Pennsylvania Organization for Waterways and Rivers (POWR).

The announcement was made January 30th by PA Department of Conservation and Natural Resources (DCNR) Secretary Cindy Adams Dunn in which she saluted the core of dedicated folks who fight hard to protect PA rivers and streams.

The Lackawanna River Conservation Association (LRCA), headed by longtime river crusader Bernie McGurl, will receive a $10,000 Leadership Grant to help fund a slate of year-long 2020 River of the Year activities.

The LRCA was created by local citizens in 1987 to promote restoration and conservation of the Lackawanna River and its watershed resources in northeast Pennsylvania. It formed a watershed stewardship program to train and involve active participants in hands-on stewardship work.

"We are very—pleased to be recognized as the PA River of the Year for 2020," said Mr. McGurl. "This honor is a strong validation of our community's work over the past 30 years to rediscover the incredible natural resource that is the Lackawanna River. The vision for a revitalized river that has been shared by the LRCA has been taken to hear by more and more of our fellow citizens every year!"

The other four competitors for this year's honor were: Brandywine Creek, Buffalo Creek, Connoquenessing Creek and the Ohio River. All voting was done online with POWR, and advocates of the Lackawanna River were able to outpoll votes for the much larger Ohio River.

The Lackawanna River flows for 60 miles through Susquehanna, Wayne, Lackawanna and Luzerne counties. Beginning at its headwaters in Ararat, it meanders down past Herrick and Union Dale, through the Stillwater Reservoir, and past Forest City, Vandling, Brown Dale and the rest of the Lackawanna Valley, until it enters the Susquehanna River between Pittston and Durysa.

The River closely parallels the D&H Rail Trail and its closeness provides a serene beauty and attraction for the many users of the Trail from Simpson to the New York State border. Much of the Trail from Simpson to Ararat has been reconstructed over the past two years.

For many years the river was adversely affected by anthracite coal mining, and by railroad, industrial and urban development. After anthracite mining was abandoned in the 1960s, it was still serving as a sewage collector for all towns along the river. It was around that time that communities along the river, bowing to legal pressure from the state, began the development of modern sanitary treatment systems instead of dumping raw sewage into the River.

In 2017, the town suffered historic fire losses from three major structure fires, one of which destroyed three Main Street buildings. Another fire, caused by the burning of trash, destroyed two Delaware Street homes. The 3rd major structure fire caused serious damage to a Railroad Street residence. None of those fires resulted in deaths or serious injuries.

Paul Lukas was the department's top responder as he came out to 120 calls. Tom Prince Sr. was next in line responding to 86 calls while Paul Mihelc responded to 84 calls. Michael Wilcox responded to 78 calls; Jim Kuruts responded to 43 calls; C. Sefcik was on 40 calls, while Trent Razderk and John Kowalewski each responded to 37 calls.

June was the busiest month for fire responses with 19, and there were 18 calls in October. A total of 947 personnel responses were recorded over the entire year.

The total time out (in minutes) for responders for the month of October was 1,229.

After much work and attention it is now a vibrant, cold-water "Class A" fishery in its middle and upper reaches. It also attracts more paddlers every year and is the focus of many other river-oriented events throughout the year.

At a recent meeting in Forest City, attended by Congressman Fred Keller of the 12th Congressional District, Scott Linde, president of Linde Corporation, Pittston, unveiled plans for a Lackawanna River Park between Forest City and Brown Dale. It would be constructed on mine scarred "Yucca Flats", between the two communities.

Linde said the project has previously received favorable consideration by the Federal Bureau of Abandoned Mines (BAMA) but has not yet received enough support in order to release funding which he estimated would require in excess of $1 million. He was seeking the support of Congressman Keller for the federal project.

The project would include leveling of the mine waste and construction of an entrance and roadway from Rte. 247, on the Brown Dale Stretch. A boat launch and picnic areas would be highlights of the finished project.

With DCNR and POWR supporting commemorative River of the Year sojourns throughout the Commonwealth, it is hoped that someday the local Lackawanna Park can be a focal point for one of these Lackawanna River paddling journeys.
